10 Best Cars to Take on a Rally
So you've made a million dollars and want to enter next year's Gumball Rally. Great. The only question is, what do you drive? We put together 10 different cars we think would be fine choices for any high-speed vacation.

Welcome to 368S

This organization is hereby formed to educate the public to the true value of the BMW M Coupe and Z3 Coupe -- among the least known, most under appreciated, highest performing, and most characterful BMW cars ever built. The Coupe was designed by a small renegade group of enthusiasts, for enthusiasts. It happened despite corporate planning and with confident disregard for focus groups. It does not conform. It takes no prisoners, except your heart -- if you have what it takes to love one. In the words of a BMW print ad, "It's a lot like nothing else." Its production run was short, and now that it has stopped, most likely nothing like it will ever come again.

One major feature that has been down for a little while was the Reference section. It also became outdated due to poor maintenance on my part. It has now been relaunched as a wiki, so everyone can help refine it. Any thoughts on organization would be appreciated as well.

Welcome to the new 368s.com

By marauder, 1321 days ago
It's been a long time coming, but it's finally here -- sort of. The new site doesn't have all the features of the old site, but it has some new ones, and some more new ones on the way.
One important thing to note is that many users' logins have changed. If you had a space or some sort of punctuation mark in your username, try it with only the letters and numbers. Your password should remain the same. If you need help, just email in. The site is still completely in beta, so not everything will be perfect. If you do find that something doesn't work, please drop an email to webmaster@368s.com. Thanks!

New version of 368s.com to launch soon

Just finishing up some items as we gear up for the new version. Stay tuned!

Dorkfest 2006 Announcement

By marauder, 1640 days ago
The wheels are in motion, and it's time once again for those mad Coupes to converge once again, this time on the shores of Half Moon Bay and at Infineon Raceway. The date is Sunday, June 4th for the Halfmoon Bay drive, and June 5th for the track day. For more information, please visit <http://www.mdork.com/> for the official information.

real news, for real drivers

By marauder, 1678 days ago
I've always found it hard to keep up with the latest automobile news, trends, board posts, and videos, as there's so much to see and such limited time. As a result, I've created a new site that enables all of us car nuts to submit, filter, and read the best and most relevant stuff out there on the web. It's collaboratively filtered (huh?), so everyone contributes.

Take a look, register an account, submit a story or two, and let me know if it works for you, or how you would improve it.

it's price. Best possible for a low

Do you've got a BMW automobile? You probably have, then why did you select to buy it? Possibly you might be simplest interested in this automotive make; possibly you are very happy with its prime efficiency; most likely you like its appearance layout very much; in all probability you simply want it

Paris Preview: BMW unwraps 6 Series Coupe Concept

Like so many "concepts" from BMW, the 6 Series Coupe bound for the Paris Motor Show is a concept in name alone. What you're looking at is BMW's next GT, and even a cursory glance proves that the Bangleization of BMW is officially over.
